ELEPHANTS IN KUI BURI NATIONAL PARK UNDER SURVEILLANCE

● PRACHUAP KIRI KHAN

As many readers will know, Kui Buri National Park, around an hour's south of Hua Hin, is home to several hundred elephants, and is a worthwhile trip for any tourist or resident alike. However the park is also in close proximity to many farms, particularly pineapple farms, but also many other fruits and vegetables, and these quite often attract the elephants out of the park and into unexpected confrontations with farmers and other residents.

In an attempt to reduce such incidents, the park is going to be the first in Thailand to install a 'Smart Early Warning System', with 25 CCTV cameras ringing the perimeter of the park, and an 'Elephant Watch Centre' that will be manned 24 hours a day to alert locals and park rangers if any elephants leave the park, so they can be ushered back. The system will be installed during March or April this year.

In addition to this, more grassland areas and water sources within the park are to be created - experts have estimated that the current elephant population of around 300 will double in the next ten years, and will require at least 3,000 rai of grassland to sustain that number. Huai Khom Krit within Kaeng Krachan National Park has had great success in keeping elephants from wandering out of the woods by providing adequate water and food sources, as well as artificial salt licks, and it is hoped that Kui Buri can follow suit.

Over recent years there have been a number of incidents between elephants and people around the Hua Hin area, although unconnected to the park, but these have resulted in deaths in one case, and also led to farmers taking their own measures to protect their crops. Vehicles have also been damaged, and any measures to try and limit such incidents must be welcomed for the safety of all concerned.

AWOL IS HIRING!

We are the only weekly newspaper in this area and we are looking for two motivated and engaging people to work in the key areas of sales and distribution.

REQUIREMENTS:

- Thai Nationals
- Good understanding of spoken and written English
- Well presented
- Previous experience in a sales environment useful but not a necessity
- Ability to work to deadlines
- Own transport (not essential but preferred)

The positions will involve selling advertising space in the newspaper and online as the major task, as well as maintaining relations with existing customers and dealing with renewals of ads, and coordinating and monitoring the efficient distribution of the paper every week.

CONDITIONS:

The positions are full time jobs but the hours and days worked are very flexible; this is not a normal 9 to 5 Monday to Friday office job as many existing and potential customers work irregular hours.

The initial salary offered to the successful candidates will vary depending on previous experience and abilities, but will be in the range of 10000 to 15000 baht a month, plus any extra commission earned through performance. There will be sales targets which if achieved will generate this extra income. We anticipate this could result in an income averaging at least 20000 baht a month, with exceptional candidates capable of earning much more.

APPLICATION:

Please send an email to info@awolonline.net with the subject line "Employment Application" and include your reasons for wanting to work for AWOL, your previous work history, your personal details including phone number and address, and any other information you believe is relevant to your application.

Got some great jokes?Send them to us on submissions@awolonline.net*● DIARIES*Wife's Diary:

Tonight, I thought my husband was acting weird. We had made plans to meet at a nice restaurant for dinner. I was shopping with my friends all day long, so I thought he was upset at the fact that I was a bit late, but he made no comment on it. Conversation wasn't flowing, so I suggested that we go somewhere quiet so we could talk. He agreed, but he didn't say much.

I asked him what was wrong; He said, 'Nothing.' I asked him if it was my fault that he was upset. He said he wasn't upset, that it had nothing to do with me, and not to worry about it. On the way home, I told him that I loved him. He smiled slightly, and kept driving. I can't explain his behaviour. I don't know why he didn't say, 'I love you, too.'

When we got home, I felt as if I had lost him completely, as if he wanted nothing to do with me anymore. He just sat there quietly, and watched TV. He continued to seem distant and absent. Finally, with silence all around us, I decided to go to bed. About 15 minutes later, he came to bed. But I still felt that he was distracted, and his thoughts were somewhere else. He fell asleep; I cried. I don't know what to do. I'm almost sure that his thoughts are with someone else. My life is a disaster.

I'm very pleased with my new fridge magnet.

So far I've got twelve fridges.

● PRESIDENT

The first Jewish woman President is elected. She calls her Mother: "Mama, I've won the elections, you've got to come to the swearing-in ceremony."
"I don't know, what would I wear?"
"Don't worry, I'll send you a dressmaker"
"But I only eat kosher food"
"Mama, I am going to be the president, I can get you kosher food"
"But how will I get there?"
"I'll send a limo, just come mama"
"Ok, Ok, if it makes you happy."
The great day comes and Mama is seated between the Supreme Court Justices and the Future Cabinet members, she nudges the gentleman on her right. "You see that girl, the one with her hand on the Bible?"
..."Her brother's a doctor!"

● FINGER LICKIN' GOOD?

Happy Groundhog Day to all. Not that it would work too well in Thailand, but in Punxsutawney over in the States it is very popular. Our German friends claim the credit for it though, using a badger to celebrate what is also Candlemass, an important day in the Pagan calendar which marks the midway point between the winter solstice and the spring equinox.

When German people first settled in America they were obviously keen to carry on their tradition, but found that groundhogs were much more plentiful than badgers, so made the switch. After all any animal keen on burrowing but not too quick off the mark would do just as well. But the poor old groundhog used in Punxsutawney doesn't get as much sleep as his friends in the wild. He is kept warm and fed indoors before being moved to a faux burrow made especially for the occasion, then taken out of the burrow on February 2nd for all to see whether he casts a shadow. No shadow means the weather will become spring like, but if there is a shadow there will be another six weeks of winter.

The UK doesn't do Groundhog Day, but does have the ancient ritual of wassailing a few days earlier, which involves a lot of dressing up and prancing around apple trees in order to increase summer crops. To help the apple trees along they are also fed large quantities of cider, but not at the expense of human needs. A more modern kind of ritual event took place in Hull last week, when graffiti artist Banksy chose a derelict bridge in the city for his latest piece of street art. You would think it would have been received in much the same way as the Turner Prize exhibits were a couple of months ago, and in fact Banksy's offering is better than most of the Turner ones. But you can't please all of the people all of the time, with one rather stuffy sounding City Councillor declaring it an eyesore, to be removed forthwith along with all other graffiti.

You can find the new Banksy work online. It is called 'Draw the Raised Bridge'. If Hull doesn't want it maybe Bangkok could make an offer and add it to next weeks' cultural tuk tuk tour of the city's art galleries. Any potential buyer should be aware though that it might not have been Banksy himself who carried out the work, but one of his assistants. Is nothing sacred?

As we progress into February it's goodbye to Veganuary, another modern ritual that wouldn't work well in Thailand, where even vegetarians take their lives into their own hands, and hello to TWOTY. Yes The Royal Wedding Of The Year is now clearly in sight. Please try not to get too excited or you might just miss the Cup Final. Meanwhile plans are afoot in THAB HQ to find a haven of peaceful television free tranquility on May 19th.

Now back to last weeks' promised expose on HullCoin, due to be launched later this year. Just one of many initiatives going on in Northern cities now, HullCoin is being developed by two former employees of the local Tessabahn. The pair have set up a social enterprise, aimed at providing people with an alternative way to help them survive in an area where jobs can be hard to get. With co-operation from local businesses, charities and the public sector, people will be able to earn HullCoins by volunteering, recycling and doing other good deeds. Think of it as an updated version of Green Shield Stamps, or loyalty cards. Tax free and exchangeable for goods and services. HullCoin won't change the world, and does seem reminiscent of age old bartering systems, but helps to show how the tide is beginning to turn in a country struggling to cope with government funding cuts.

And finally - how do you feel about a female Colonel Sanders? We all know that the original 'Colonel' was the man behind KFC. For years he has always been portrayed with his mustache and that funny little beard, but now he is to become a woman in drag. Admittedly the woman behind the makeup in KFC's new ad does look the part, giving it a pantomime twist, but mutterings could quickly be heard from LGBT communities world wide. How dare they make fun of transgender people in adverts for chicken buckets? Only time will tell how long the joke is allowed to run before KFC is swamped by law suits.

NO ONE DOES MORE FOR VETERANS.

CAPRICORN DEC 22 - JAN 19

You try to be a decent person with a good perspective on life and a firm view of right and wrong, but you'll soon find yourself ordering something called a half-caff skinny maple soy latte.

TAURUS APR 21 - MAY 21

For the third excruciating week in a row, you will find yourself powerless to prevent your day from perfectly mimicking the lyrics of "Stairway To Heaven."

VIRGO AUG 23 - SEP 22

You'll fall short of funky expectations this week when you find yourself digging the scene and looking clean, but without any sort of gangster lean.

AQUARIUS JAN 20 - FEB 18

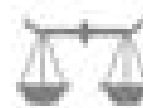

You'll be devastated by the news that you could have stopped a major tragedy in Nigeria if you had only answered their pleading emails in time.

GEMINI MAY 22 - JUNE 21

You can't help but feel that if there were something you could do to stop being such a wishy-washy, passive, indecisive loser, you would have done it by now.

LIBRA SEP 23 - OCT 23

The stars have no wisdom or portents to impart at this time, but thought it would be bad manners not to at least say hi.

PISCES FEB 19 - MAR 20

Your eyes will be a little too big for your stomach next week when a sudden, hideous allergic reaction causes your eyes to swell six times their usual size.

CANCER JUN 22 - JUL 22

Air and fire magicks are very strong in your sign right now, so it's fortunate that you're really into igniting your own flatulence.

SCORPIO OCT 24 - NOV 21

You've always wanted to be the one that people come to for wisdom and comfort, but you'll have to settle for being the one that the stripper winds up talking to about her kids.

ARIES MAR 21 - APR 20

Home is where your heart is, and your lungs and liver too, but despite a month-long search they'll never find all of you.

LEO JUL 23 - AUG 22

You'll find steady if undignified employment as the guy who stands right behind the crime boss and emphatically repeats the last words of all his sentences in a sneering voice.

SAGITTARIUS NOV 22 - DEC 21

Sometimes there is just no way to say you're sorry, but the rest of the time you should probably try just walking up to the person and saying "I'm sorry."

- A section for all you budding etymologists where each week the origin of a word or phrase is investigated.

THIS WEEK IT IS.... MY CUP OF TEA

Something or someone that one finds pleasing.

My cup of tea An English website about the English language can't of course be complete without some consideration of tea. Tea has been around for a long time, and so has the British slang term for it - 'char'. In fact, it was known in the west by that version of the Mandarin ch'a before it was called 'tea'. The Dutch adventurer Jan Huygen van Linschoten was one of the first to recount its use as a drink, in Discours of voyages into ye Easte & West Indies, 1598:

The aforesaid warme water is made with the powder of a certaine hearbe called Chaa.

'My cup of tea' is just one of the many tea-related phrases that are still in common use in the UK, such as 'Not for all the tea in China', 'I could murder a cup of tea', 'More tea vicar?', 'Tea and sympathy', 'Rosie Lee', 'Storm in a teacup' and so on.

In the early 20th century, a 'cup of tea' was such a synonym for acceptability that it became the name given to a favoured friend, especially one with a boisterous, life-enhancing nature. William de Morgan, the Edwardian artist and novelist, used the phrase in the novel Somehow Good, 1908, and went on to explain its meaning:

"He may be a bit hot-tempered and impulsive... otherwise, it's simply impossible to help liking him." To which Sally replied, borrowing an expression from Ann the housemaid, that Fenwick was a cup of tea. It was metaphorical and descriptive of invigoration.

People or things with which one felt an affinity began to be called 'my cup of tea' in the 1930s. Nancy Mitford appears to be the first to record that term in print, in the comic novel Christmas Pudding, 1932:

I'm not at all sure I wouldn't rather marry Aunt Loudie. She's even more my cup of tea in many ways.

In keeping with the high regard for tea, most of the early references to 'a cup of tea' as a description of an acquaintance are positive ones, that is, 'nice', 'good', 'strong' etc. The expression is more often used in the 'not my cup of tea' form these days. This negative usage began in WWII. An early example of it is found in Hal Boyle's Leaves From a War Correspondent's Notebook column, which described English life and manners for an American audience. The column provided the American counterpart to Alister Cooke's Letter from America and was syndicated in various US papers. In 1944, he wrote:

[In England] You don't say someone gives you a pain in the neck. You just remark "He's not my cup of tea."

The change from the earlier positive 'my cup of tea' phrase, to the dismissive 'not my cup of tea' doesn't reflect the national taste for the drink itself. Tea remains our cup of tea here in the UK. According to the United Kingdom Tea Council (of course, there had to be one) 60 million of us down 160 million cups of the stuff each day.

Vodafone customer regrets taking phone to Vietnam after landing £727 data bill

An absent-minded tourist has racked up an eye-watering £727 Vodafone bill after turning his data on for less than a day. Kash Iqbal's sky-high data roaming charges cost almost as much as the flights to Asia and he is demanding Vodafone quash the bill.

When the 42-year-old got back on home soil he realised his phone had been blocked. So he called up Vodafone and was gobsmacked when they said he had spent £727 on data roaming – charged at £1.80 per MB. Mr Iqbal of Harrow claims he used data roaming for a total of just four hours whilst in Vietnam when he was on a train and wanted to see a map. In fact, in just four hours Mr Iqbal went through almost 400mb, totalling £693. The entire cost of his two-week stay was just £1,500. The phone company say that Vietnam is not covered by its data roaming price plans and that much of the money will go to Vietnamese companies. Mr Iqbal said of checking his phone on the train journey: 'I had no idea where I was and nobody on the train spoke any English and I wanted to make sure I didn't get off at the wrong stop. So I was trying to desperately trying to search on Google maps to see where I was. It wasn't even working properly, so I was getting seriously, seriously p*d off. But I needed to know where I was, and I needed to use Google maps because I was alone on a ten and a half hour train trip.' He added: 'I was shocked and disgusted when I saw my bill. I'm not paying it, I'm changing to EE. 'If they want the money they can sing for it. They're shambolic, stupid, and they're taking the p*ss.' He claims Vodafone sent him a text when he initially landed saying his data roaming would be capped at £39.06 but then he was sent a bill saying he had been charged at £1.80 per MB used. He said: 'Basically they've spoilt a fantastic two weeks holiday in Vietnam. It was a nice break and I was hoping to come back refreshed. But instead I came back to this. They've stitched me up.'

A spokeswoman for Vodafone said: 'Vietnam is not covered by our roaming price plans so usage would be charged at the standard rate. 'Mr Iqbal would have received a welcome message confirming that data would be charged at £1.80 per MB. A significant proportion of this charge goes to the overseas network operator.' However, all is not lost for Mr Iqbal, Vodafone had offered him a discount. The spokesman said: 'The account has been closed and Mr Iqbal is no longer our customer. However, as a gesture of goodwill we have offered to reduce the charges by 10%.'

● RUSSIA

It's so cold in Siberia that the insides of buildings have frozen solid

It's been pretty cold out there this winter and although it feels like spring may never come spare a thought for people in Siberia who returned home to find the inside of their flats had completely frozen over. People living in the block, in Novosibirsk, south-west Russia, are demanding action after the inside of the entrance to their building turned into an ice cave. The floor and stairs are coated in ice while icicles hang from the ceilings, window frames, bannisters and the underside of the stairway. Authorities say it is not clear what caused the bizarre scene but those living inside the flats blame condensation from water pipes in the basement, combined with the bitter cold of the Siberian winter. Temperatures dropped to as low as minus 19 degrees in the city, but residents say they never expected to see stalagmites and stalactites inside their homes.

Videos and photos posted online by those living there revealed the bizarre and uncomfortable living situation. Neighbours want to raise awareness of their situation because they say nothing is being done about it. They are concerned that when milder weather arrives the ice will melt and could flood their flats. But commenting on the photos online, Aleksander Makarenko said the effect was 'strangely beautiful'. 'This is the home of a snow queen,' he said. But Evgeny Nsk said: 'It will be disastrous when it starts to melt. 'I can only imagine what condition the flats are in.' Local reports said there had been no confirmation council workers had been sent to investigate the problem. Novosibirsk is Russia's third biggest city, after Moscow and St Petersburg, and is regarded as the capital of Siberia.

FEATURED GAME

SUNDAY 4TH FEBRUARY 2018

PREMIER LEAGUE

Liverpool v Tottenham Hotspur 23:30

At time of writing, Spurs had not played their crucial game against Manchester United, but whatever the result of that, this is 4th versus 5th, and both sides will be looking to win this to improve their top four credentials, as well as distance them from 6th placed Arsenal. Both will also have hopes of being able to finish second and automatic Champions League qualification. This has the potential to be one of the best games of the season, with both managers being attack minded and with an array of players that most teams would covet. It is a hard one to call, but Liverpool have been a little erratic recently, and we think Spurs are getting on a roll again, so we are going to predict an away win and a further tightening of the group of teams from second to fifth.

DAMNED UNITED

NEW LEEDS UNITED BADGE THAT SHOWS FAN CHECKING
WATCH TO SEE IF HE CAN GO HOME YET SCRAPPED

● ENGLAND

The new club badge unveiled by Leeds United last week that was designed to reflect the reality of supporting the team as it approaches its 100th year has been already scrapped after less than a week following fan protests.

The new crest showed a fan looking at his watch during a Leeds game and wondering if he can go home yet, as the designers sought to capture the essence of what it means to support Leeds United in 2019.

A club spokesperson explained, "There have been times, in the not too distant past, when Leeds fans were constantly excited at the prospect of fighting towards the top of the premier league; when they were regularly enjoying noisy European nights at Elland Road – but those days have gone.

"Today's Leeds fan experience is more about scrapping for a point at home against Preston North End and wondering if leaving now means you might miss the traffic and be home in time for Take Me Out.

"It was felt important we move with the times, and we felt the new badge really embodied the values of boredom, ambivalence and a general sense of wanting to be somewhere else doing literally anything else."

Many fans expressed their anger at the new club crest, with season ticket holder Simon Williams telling us, "I haven't been this embarrassed to be a Leeds fan since we got dicked 3-0 away at Sheffield Wednesday.

"The club is claiming that they consulted 10,000 people on their way to agreeing to this new redesign, but having seen the atrocity they've eventually come up with, I can only conclude they were all Manchester United fans."
